KENAN INSTITUTE FOR ETHICS GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP, 2018-2019

NB: This Fellowship involves regular participation in a seminar (typically featuring an invited speaker, with no readings in advance) which meets approximately five times in each of the Fall and Spring semesters, on a Monday from noon-1:30 pm. In addition, Fellows are expected to present some of their own work in progress in one of the half-day workshops held during the pre-exam reading break at the end of each term. If you foresee that you will not be able to attend all or virtually all the sessions, please do not apply this year.

Please answer each one of the following questions in a sentence or short paragraph.

1. What is the tentative topic/title of your dissertation research?

2. Scholarly research typically aims to have an impact on existing debates among respected scholars who disagree with each other. Sometimes leading scholars disagree about empirical matters and their interpretation, and sometimes they disagree over values, principles, norms, or ideology. And often debates are fueled by disagreements about both empirical and normative matters. Please help us to understand your dissertation research by answering each of the following questions in a concise paragraph:

- (a) What debates (in general terms) will you engage with in your dissertation research?
- (b) What normative and empirical disagreements among leading scholars in these debates will you be trying to clarify or resolve?
- (c) How will your dissertation research help to clarify or resolve these controversies and debates?

3. Which scholar in your field would you recommend as an ideal guest speaker for one of the Monday Lunch Seminars with the other Kenan Graduate Fellows, and why? (We are most interested in visiting speakers who help us to think through particular controversies that are driven, at least in part, by normative issues and disagreements.)

4. Please provide names and e-mail addresses for your dissertation advisor and someone else who knows your work well.

Please e-mail (a) this application, along with (b), a copy of your CV, to kie@duke.edu with the subject line "Graduate Fellowship" by noon on Monday, 16 July 2018.

Each year the class of KIE Graduate Fellows is drawn from across faculties and professional schools at Duke. Visit <http://kenan.ethics.duke.edu/people/graduate-students/> for details on all of the Fellows from 2017-18.
